About the Brookfield Police Department

Brookfield is a small town located north of the City of Danbury in Fairfield County, Connecticut, and covers 20+ square miles. It is bordered west by Candlewood Lake and east by Lake Lillinonah, two of Connecticut's largest and most scenic lakes. The town has a robust economy, a strong retail and commercial base, and a growing resident population of more than 17,000.

The Brookfield Police Department was organized on July 1, 1977, and has a current authorized strength of thirty-six full-time sworn officers, four special officers, and twelve full and part-time civilian personnel. The Department Command Staff consists of the Chief of Police, a Major, and two Captains. There is a Patrol Division, a Detective Division, a Youth Officer and School Resource Officers, a SCUBA Team, a Crash Investigation Team, a Community Affairs Team, Tactical Operators with the Danbury Emergency Services Unit, part-time Evidence Technicians, a K-9 and Drone units.

Police Officers are represented by the Brookfield Police Union, Local 1544, AFSCME Council 4, in contract negotiations for salary and benefits.
